

ARIZONA'S

METEORITE

CRATER

Past — Present — Future

arvey
H. H. Nininger

TECHNICAL LIBRARY
ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION
WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

AMERICAN METEORITE MUSEUM — SEDONA, ARIZONA

17547

Copyright, 1956, by H. H. Nininger
All rights reserved
Printed in the United States of America

American Meteorite Museum Staff

H. H. Nininger, Director
Addie D. Nininger, Secretary-Treasurer
Glenn I. Huss, Manager and Preparator
Margaret A. Huss, Editor
C. H. Brandmeyer, Superintendent of Construction and Design

Printed by WORLD PRESS, INC., DENVER, COLO.

A-773-57 6118159 3.75 M.D.Q.

This book is dedicated to the proposition that the Arizona Meteorite Crater is one of the world's greatest natural laboratories, and as such should be protected from all forms of mutilation and contamination and be perpetually preserved for purposes of research and education.

Table of Contents

The Birth of a Crater.....	xiii
----------------------------	------

PART ONE—Discovery and Exploration

Introduction .....	3
Early History .....	9
A Commercial Venture .....	23

PART TWO—A Newer View

A New Approach.....	57
Condensation Products .....	81
Impactite—an Oversight.....	117
Observations on Diamonds.....	137
The Future of the Crater.....	145
References .....	155
Explanations for the Plates.....	159
Illustrations .....	169
Bibliography .....	217
Index .....	225